WEATHER FORECAST

(Copyrighted 1915 by W. T. Foster.)
Washington, D. C., June 12.—Last bulletin gave forecasts of disturbances to cross continent June 11 to 15, and 16 to 20, warm waves 19 to 24 and 17 to 19, cool waves 12 to 17 and 18 to 22. At the beginning of these weather events temperatures will be very low and at the end of them very high. Storm forces will be a little greater than usual but not dangerous and rainfall will be generally deficient. The severe storms will probably not continue long after June 12. Rains of this ten days are expected to be heaviest in southern and eastern sections with greatest deficiencies in middle northwest, the north half of division one of our weather maps.

Next disturbance will reach Pacific coast about June 20, cross Pacific slope by close of 21, great central valleys 22 to 24, eastern sections 25. Warm wave will cross Pacific slope about June 20, great central valleys 22, eastern sections 24. Cool wave will cross Pacific slope about June 23, great central valleys 25, eastern sections 27.

Unusually warm weather will prevail in northern sections during the week centering on June 23. Southern and eastern states will get more than usual rainfall but it will be unevenly distributed. Local drouths and local floods will contend for supremacy in the lower Mississippi valleys and westward to the Pacific and this condition will continue during the rainfall month, June 19 to July 18. Some unusually heavy rains are expected during that rainfall month south of the Potomac and east of the lower Mississippi valleys.

One of the largest grain and cotton broker companies in Chicago, in their daily letter of May 22, said: "Pomeroy's May forecasts of rains were wonderfully correct." Our cropweather forecasts have surely taken on a boom in popularity since the beginning of this year.

European speculators have recently robbed America of many millions of dollars by downright lying about the amount of surplus grain in Russia. By using the public press they have made it appear that Russia has enough wheat to supply all Europe and that the Dardanelis would soon be opened, letting loose a flood of Russian wheat for use of other European nations. That systematic fabrication has robbed America of twenty-five cents a bushel on all wheat that has been exported this year and the European speculators will have profited as much as we have lost.

Wheat, last of May, was altogether too low and our farmers should not be robbed in that way. At this writing, May 29, that same speculative scheme is being pushed in America because shipments of new wheat have started from southern points.

Every bushel of wheat this year should net the farmer twenty-five cents more than the prices set by speculators. Again we warn all that Spring wheat will be damaged by drouth, particularly in all northern Europe and as there is absolutely no prospect of an early ending of the European war our advice is to sell no wheat at the present prices.

Sunday school at 9:45 a. m., Prof. Jno. A. Moore, superintendent.

Sunday school at 3 p. m., at Oak Grove, Judge J. G. Minkert, superintendent.

Preaching at 11 a. m. and 8:15 p. m., by Rev. A. T. Coleman.

B. Y. P. U. at 7:15 p. m., Miss Annie Bell Batte, president.

Rev. A. T. Coleman has been invited to preach for us by the committee, which was appointed last Sunday by the church to secure an assistant pastor. We trust large congregations will greet Brother Coleman at both services. You are cordially invited to attend these services and worship with us.

M. E. WEAVER, Pastor.

ST. JOSEPH'S CHURCH.

First mass and instruction at 8 o'clock; second mass and instruction in Spanish, at 9 o'clock.

Sunday school at 9:30.

High mass, sermon and benediction at 10:30 o'clock.

Evening devotion at 8 o'clock.

There will be no service during the entire week, as all the priests of the diocese will be in LaPorte, to make their bi-annual retreat. Rev. H. Servin, however, will be at Villa Maria to attend sick calls and administer the sacraments.

J. B. GLEISSNER, Pastor.

FIRST CHRISTIAN CHURCH.

The First Christian church invites you to many and all of its services tomorrow, June 13, 1915. Especially do we invite friends and visitors.

J. C. WELSH, Pastor.

METHODIST CHURCH SERVICES.

The pastor will preach at both hours tomorrow at the Methodist church. Subject for the morning hour will be "Sanctification—True View," and at night it will be, "Sin in Believers."

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY.

New Science Picks Child's Right Career; No More Square Pegs in Round Holes.

By Charles Henry Adams.

New York, June 11.—No more square pegs for round holes!

That is the new command of science. We must have no more plumb lines who ought to be poets, no more stenographers who ought to be second girls, no more cashiers who ought to be carpenters, no more merchants who ought to be musicians. Every one of us is fitted to do some one thing and to enjoy doing it, but, because of haphazard education and vocational selection, many only find as usual. Come out and let us help you and inspire you.

Sunday school at 9:45 a. m.

Preaching at 11 a. m. and 8:15 p. m.

Junior League at 3:30 p. m.

Senior League at 7:30 p. m.

CHAS. T. TALLEY, Pastor.

FIRST PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH.

Sunday school at 9:45 a. m., Elton Stuart, superintendent.

Preaching service, 11:00 a. m.

The subject will be "The Place of Prayer in an All-Wise Providence."

If the weather permits the pastor expects to drive out to Wheelock for the evening service, hence there will be no service here, otherwise there will be the usual night service at 8:15.

The Westminster League will hold its regular meeting at 7:30 p. m.

You are cordially invited to these services.

CHARLTON H. STORY, Pastor.

ST. ANDREW'S CHURCH.

Services for week beginning June 13.—(Sunday second after Trinity)—

9:45 a. m., Sunday school; 11:00, Morning prayer.

Thursday—7:30 p. m., choir rehearsal.

Friday—7:30 a. m., Peace eucharist.

There will be no celebration of the Holy Communion or evening services on Sunday as the Rector is called to Hearne to conduct the funeral of one of his parishoners there.

RANDOLPH RAY, Rector.

FREEWILL BAPTIST CHURCH.

Sunday school at 10:00 o'clock a. m., L. M. Gandy, superintendent.

Christian Endeavor Society, at 7:15 p. m., Jno. McMillan, president.

Preaching at 8:15 p. m.

In the absence of the pastor, the pulpit will be filled by Rev. J. O. Giggs of College.

their real work after several false tries—or perhaps never find it at all.

Science has changed all that. Science says you mustn't take a job in shop simply because it's the first one offered you; that you mustn't enter the ministry simply because your mother wanted to see you in the pulpit. According to Dr. George W. Jacoby, the neurologist, "we can now determine with almost mathematical certainty the degree of a child's intelligence and its power of understanding; also its brain exhaustibility and specific endowment. Any plan of training is no longer vague, but absolutely definite."

"Between the ages of twelve and fourteen," she said, every girl and boy should be taken to a character analyst. Their physical, mental, emotional and volitional characteristics should be carefully tabulated. A brief study of the resultant combination will determine with absolute mathematical certainty, just what sort of work the youthful candidate is best fitted to perform."

"The hands have many hints as to the proper choice of vocation. The man with slender, sensitive fingers will have a gift for handling tools or instruments." And then Dr. Blackford showed me the pictured hands of a powerful executive, square and short-fingered; also the hands of a politician, with stubby, bent fingers held loosely apart, the upper joint of the thumb curved back. "You can tell a poet from an artist or an inventor," she declared, "just by studying the shape of the finger tips."

GLOBE SIGHTS.

(By the Atchison Globe.)

Seems like the devil always gets organized first.

There is a big difference between a house and a home, don't you forget.

An Atchison man says he is a Mormon, probably because he is married to all of his wife's kin.

If marriage doesn't make a man realize the value of a dollar then all hopes of his ever becoming a financier should be annulled.

A man who is clever in scheming for invitations in his youth, will find his cleverness valuable in getting out of accepting invitations in his old age.

A cynic is a man who hasn't had his curiosity excited since the days when he was young, and his mother used to bring packages from town with her.

A brief baccalaureate sermon: Here's best wishes to you all. And keep in mind by all means that elbow grease will do more than the big words you have just learned toward holding jobs for you.

Jude Johnson: "That I love publicity I never will deny, but I'll never walk from coast to coast to get it."

If you demand gratitude in return for a present, don't give the present and retain your faith in humanity.

J. P. Gilpin of Kurten was seen in the city today.

C. H. B. Graham visited Bryan today from Harvey.

H. C. Robinson Jr. of Houston joined his wife here last night on a visit to her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. T. James.

ARMY AND NAVY TERMS.

Origin of Some of the Titles and Expressions in Use.

Here are the origins of some of the terms used in the army and navy: "Captain" is derived from the Latin "caput," meaning a head; "colonel" comes from the Italian "colonna," a column, the "compagna colonella" having been the first company of an infantry regiment, the little column which the "colonel" led. The title "lieutenant" comes from a word signifying "holding the place"—e. g., a lieutenant colonel is a sort of understudy for a colonel, a lieutenant looks after a company in the absence of the captain, and so on. The titles of "lance sergeant" and "lance corporal" originated in the fact that in the old days the holders of those ranks carried a lance instead of a halberd, round the head of which was twisted a slow match. Their duties were to go round the ranks with these torchlike lances and give fire to the matchlock men just before a battle took place.

The word "dragoon" was first used of a regiment of mounted infantry, so called from the "dragons," or short muskets, with which they were armed; the well known cavalry call of "Boot and saddle" is really a corruption of the old French signal, "Doutez vous," or "Put on your saddles." "Admiral" comes from the Arabic "Emir of bigh," meaning "Lord of the sea"; "commodore" comes from the Italian "comandatore"; "mate" is from the Icelandic and means an equal, and the term "giving quarter" is believed to have originated in the agreement which existed in the old fighting days, that the ransom of a foot soldier should be one-quarter of his pay for one year.—Person's Weekly.

BELFRY OF BRUGES.

A Belgian Landmark That Goes Back to the Thirteenth Century.

Of all the cities of Belgium Bruges has best preserved its medieval characteristics. Bruges in Flemish means bridges, the city deriving its name from its many bridges, all opening in the middle to admit of the passage of vessels. It is connected with the sea, eight miles away, by the three canals from Ghent, Sluys and Ostend.

Dating from the third century, Bruges ultimately became the metropolis of the world's commerce. Seventeen privileged trading companies, from seventeen different kingdoms, settled there, while its importance was such that twenty ministers from foreign courts at one time had mansions within its walls.

The belfry of Bruges is probably the most famous in the world. It was built at the end of the thirteenth century. It is 353 feet high and possesses a carillon of forty-eight bells, regarded as the finest in Europe. It is really one of the detached municipal belfries which were erected in the twelfth and thirteenth centuries in certain continental towns as important symbols of their freedom.

Caston, the first English printer, lived at Bruges, where he served out his apprenticeship after the death, in 1441, of his first master, Robert Lange (lord mayor of London, 1439-40). Caston lived in Bruges for thirty-five years, when he returned to London and set up his press in Westminster.—London Answers.

Wellington's Plans.

Wellington's reticence once drew a protest from Lord Uxbridge, the brilliant cavalry leader, who lost a leg at Waterloo and became Marquis of Anglesey. On the eve of the great battle Uxbridge, although next to Wellington in command, knew nothing of his chief's plans for the morrow's battle. With trepidation he approached the duke. If Wellington were killed Uxbridge would become commander in chief. What was the plan? The duke listened patiently. "Tell me, Uxbridge, who will attack the first tomorrow, I or Bonaparte?" "Undoubtedly Bonaparte." "Well, Bonaparte hasn't given me any idea of his projects, and, as my plans depend upon his plans, how can you expect me to tell you mine?"—London Standard.

Source of Supply.

"What is one of the principal products of the West Indies?" asked the teacher.

The class remained dubiously silent. "Oh, come, think a little!" adjured the teacher, with patient encouragement. "Billy, tell the class where the sugar you use in your home comes from."

Billy pondered bashfully for a moment, then, blushing, blurted out: "Sometimes we buy it at the grocer's, but I think we usually borrow it from the folks who live next door."—Chicago News.

Happy Thought.

Ministerial Friend on a visit—I wonder what it is that makes your mamma so happy today? She is singing around all over the house. Little Nell—I dare she's thought of somedn' to send papa about when he comes home.—London Tit-Bits.

An Exception.

"I believe in the motto 'Never put off till tomorrow what you can do today.'"

"I say that $5 then."

"The rule doesn't apply; that's something I can't do today."—Boston Transcript.

A Philosopher.

"These things as they come, eh?"

"Yes. And when they don't come he takes a rest."—Hirmingham Age-Herald.
